NCCU SCHOOL OF LAW VISITING STUDENT APPLICATION - PART II APPLICATION OF NORTH CAROLINA RESIDENCY FOR TUITION PURPOSES

All visiting students must complete this residency form.

Signature of Applicant

Your residency for tuition purposes determines your in-state or out-of-state status and may impact your admission, tuition, scholarship or financial aid eligibility. North Carolina residency for tuition purposes is governed by North Carolina state law. More information about North Carolina residency for tuition purposes can be found at www.ncresidency.org.

If you claim to be a resident, you must complete the residency process with the Residency Determination Service (RDS) at www.ncresidency.org. You will receive a Residency Certification Number (RCN) which you are required to enter on your visiting student application.

If you say 'No', you will be charged the non-resident tuition rate if enrolled at North Carolina Central University School of Law.

***IMPORTANT - PLEASE NOTE***

A student from another ABA-approved law school may be granted visiting student status to attend classes at the School of Law for an academic term or year. Students must have completed 29 hours of law credits to be eligible to become a visiting student. A visiting student will be ineligible to receive a degree from NCCU School of Law. Native NCCU students have priority enrollment in classes of their choice and there is no guarantee that a visiting student will be able to register for specific courses. Please note that visiting students must adhere to the drop/add and grading deadlines for North Carolina Central University, which may not correspond to a visiting student's home institution. Also, visiting students must qualify for financial aid through their home institution and will not qualify for financial aid from North Carolina Central University. However, North Carolina Central University will honor a consortium agreement with your home institution, subject to the approval of the Office of Scholarship and Student Aid.
